YOUNG WILL NOT RUN
Plans To Call A Convention
Charged At Last Moment.

Louisville, Ky., Mar. 6.—After keeping the Democrats of Kentucky in suspense for several months the Democratic State Executive Committee Saturday took what may be considered final action in designating the manner of nominating a ticket for the State offices in an official call for a primary to be held on Saturday, July 1.

The original date fixed by the committee was May 27, but this was changed to June 24, and then again to July 1, at the insistence of the candidates, who for several weeks have not known "where they were at."

Until early in the afternoon it was regarded almost a moral certainty by those in attendance that the committee would rescind the call for the State primary and order an old-fashioned convention to name the ticket and platform of principles.

Plans were changed after Judge Allie Young declared that he would not enter the race for the Democratic nomination as long as former Senator James B. McCreary was a candidate. This with the action of Congressman Ben Johnson in requesting his friends on the committee to stand by the primary call since the senatorship indorsement was included, it is said, caused the plans for overturning the original call to collapse, when success seemed nigh.

Congressman Ollie M. James, who is a candidate for United States Senator, and his friends worked hard to prevent the primary plans being disturbed, and it is said that they were instrumental in securing the assistance of Congressman Johnson. The assessments remain as before, $24,000. Entries close June 1, and the votes will be canvassed in Louisville July 20. Independents may vote.

The Magazine Club will meet with Mrs. J. H. Dagg through the month of March.

THE COUNCIL

Met in Monthly Session
Friday Night.

The city council met Friday night with five councilmen present, Councilmen Higgins and Lebkuecher absent.

The usual monthly reports were filed. Health Officer Stone's report for February showed deaths; 1 white and 7 colored; births, 8 white and 1 colored.

A deed to an extension to Thirteenth street was accepted and an appropriation of $500 made to improve same from present terminus to College street.

The street committee was ordered to metal West Second street at an expense of $200.

The budget of accounts for February was paid, $202.32. Also the City Light Co.'s bill, $559.45, Richard Leavell, on mule trade, $50, and the board bills of E. H. Armstrong, Workhouse Keeper, $247.60.

The Corporations Committee was authorized to purchase testing instruments for testing water and electric meters.

J. H. West was granted a building permit for a livery stable on Third and Liberty Streets.

DR. D. A. AMOSS NOW ON TRIAL

Case Taken Up In Circuit Court Yesterday Afternoon.

ARRAY OF COUNSEL.

Making Up Of The Jury Occupied the Time and Not Yet Completed.

The cases against D. A. Amoss, J. B. Malone, Guy Dunning, John Robinson, Newton Nichols and Irving Glass, charged with conspiracy in the raid on Hopkinsville Dec. 6-7, 1907, were called yesterday shortly before noon and both sides announced ready. The defendants and a large number of their witnesses and friends came in on the I. C. train and court took up the cases at 1:30 p. m.

The prosecution is conducted by Commonwealth's Attorney Denny P. Smith assisted by County Attorney Jno. C. Duffy; Trimble & Bell and John Stites and Jas. C. Sims, of Bowling Green. The attorneys for the defense are C. H. Bush, W. T. Fowler, Thos. P. Cook; J. S. Hodges, of Eddyville and Jno. W. Kelly, of Cadiz.

The Commonwealth elected to try Dr. D. A. Amoss first. The first jurors called was Luther Smithson. He answered the questions that qualified him as a juror and after examining 20 of the regular panel the following were unchallenged.

L. H. Smithson
W. M. Henderson
Ed Griffith
T. M. West
F. B. Wagoner
M. F. Winfree
R. C. Chilton
D. J. McCord
M. D. Hord
C. L. Mayes
L. R. Crawley
J. H. Williams.

At 2:30 the Commonwealth asked for an hour or two to prepare affidavits impeaching the qualifications of several of the panel.

A very large crowd was in the city and hundreds of strangers mingled with the crowds on the streets.

Milton Oliver, the chief witness, arrived under military escort Sunday from Metropolis. Sanford Hall also arrived from Louisville.

At 4 o'clock affidavits were read tending to disqualify several of the panel from service.

Blaze in Cook Room.

The fire department was called to the residence of Mr. J. T. Thomas, on West Fifteenth street just before noon yesterday. The blaze was on the cook room floor, under the stove, and the flames were extinguished in short order. The damage is small.

SESIGNS IN A HUFF

President Calls Extra Session of Congress For April 4.

Washington, March, 6.—The sixty-first Congress ended at noon Saturday, having failed to pass two of the most talked about measures presented during the session, that provided reciprocity with Canada and the permanent tariff board bill submitted by the President. Mr. Taft immediately made good his threat to call an extra session and in his proclamation named April 4 as the date when both branches shall reconvene. Confusion, almost without a precedent in the history of Congress, marked the closing.

Senator Bailey, of Texas, piqued at the attitude of his Democratic colleagues on the proposal to ratify the new State Constitution of Arizona, including the initiative, referendum and recall features, tendered his resignation to the Vice President. Mr. Sherman refused to accept, and the Texan immediately telegraphed his resignation to the Governor of his State. The latter urgently requested the Senator to reconsider, and several hours later the resignation was withdrawn.

Out of the smoke of the closing battle in congress emerge these results of larger interest:

POSITIVE RESULTS.

A Provision of $3,000,000 for the fortification of the Panama canal.

Provisions for two new battleships.

Recodification of the judicial code regarded as the most important for the amelioration of the law's delays.

Creation of forest preserves in the Southern Appalachian and White Mountains.

Providing for the construction of embassy and legation buildings abroad.

Requiring the inspection of loco motive boilers.

Creating Robert E. Peary a Rear Admiral on the retired list of the navy and formally tendering thanks of Congress to him.

Creating a commission of five Senators and five Representatives to investigate conditions in Alaska.

NEGATIVE RESULTS.

Failure of the Canadian reciprocity agreement and consequent certainty of an extra session.

Of the permanent tariff board bill, which passed the Senate, but was killed by filibuster in the House.

Of the resolution to admit to statehood Arizona and New Mexico, killed by a filibuster in the Senate.

Of the proposal to increase the rate of postage on the advertising sections of the large magazines, but a commission provided for to investigate the subject.

Of the resolution providing for the direct election of United States Senators.

Of the general age pension bill.

To act on Ballinger-Pinchot investigation reports.

To enact the ocean mail subsidy, passed by the Senate alone.

Of the effort to unseat William Lorimer as Senator from Illinois on the ground of alleged bribery in his election.

Of bill fixing canal tolls and setting forth of Government for Panama Canal zone.

Of congressional reapportionment bill based on the new census.

McCord--Williams.

Medley McCord and Miss Ozle Williams, of near Kelly, were married at the Courthouse Friday afternoon. Esq. W. Walton Garrett performed the ceremony.

AMUSEMENTS

In hundreds of cities in this country, "Peck's Bad Boy," which is billed for Holland's Opera House March 9, holds the record for attendance. There is scarcely a theatre-goer in any community who cannot recall some time or other when this favorite old comedy with music, has not "stood them up" in a local playhouse. Particularly true is this of matinee performances, for "Peck's Bad Boy" is without an equal as a play for the children.

The old favorite has not been seen in this locality for some time, and its return will be welcomed by the many people who remember it for past enjoyable evenings. It has been brightened and refreshed with the addition of new songs and dances and the interpreting company is the best which has ever been congregated for the play.

No Talk About Reciprocity.

The President, it is true, has spoken with winning and convincing words upon the desirability of closer relations between Canada and the United States. In taking this tone he is talking upon safe and well trodden ground. Close relations with Canada as a definite policy were far advanced when Mr. Taft was in the cabinet under a former administration. Secretary Root, with the sympathetic aid of the British ambassador, the statesmanlike co-operation of a great Governor General and a great Premier at Ottawa, and the good will of a friendly government at London, faced one problem after another and solved them away. Mr. Root's Canada policy was of historic significance. Closer trade arrangements were all but ready to follow the settlement of disputes, and there are daily signs of a strong trend in the direction of a closer union. The thing to be desired is full freedom of trade between Canada and the United States. But there is at this moment no need of reciprocity trade agreement merely to promote good feeling. There is ample good feeling already. Mr. Champ Clark's allusion to an ultimate political union required no apologies. It has been freely talked of in England and everywhere else for half a century. If Canada ever wishes to annex us, we shall appreciate the compliment.

It follows that there can be no desperate rush about a reciprocity treaty that is not in its main features all that could be desired. The best way to secure the Canadian markets for our manufactures is to begin by opening our own markets to those Canadian products that our people need and ought to have. From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews, for March.

Forced to Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are poor and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of my trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

HUMAN BODIES TO COMPLETE CIRCUIT

Young Clarksville Men Play
Tricks With City Light
Current.

Clarksville, Tenn., March 4.—Two youths of this city have astonished the public and local electricians with the daring act of using their bodies as a medium for the passage of deadly voltage of the electric arc light circuit of the Clarksville Light & Power Company. The young men are Messrs. Frank McDaniel, a clerk at Fletcher's Pharmacy, and Roger Abbey, an electrical workman. Both are electrical students and have devoted much time to study and experiment, but why they are not struck dead while bearing death-dealing voltage is a mystery. Persons, with technical knowledge of electricity, and its dangerous nature in high voltage, have been horrified on seeing them attempt several experiments. One of the most dangerous in which they have been seen is in completing a 110 volt circuit with two arc light carbons, one carbon being held by each boy and brought in contact while they stood on metallic plates wired in a circuit. To make the experiment more blood curdling, one of the boys holds a carbon in his mouth while the other makes the contact. A light of the same brilliancy and volume is produced as seen in the large street arc lights.

A man in the employ of the local light and power company was instantly killed in this city a few months ago by the same current with which these boys make bold. The only explanation of their immunity is gradual immutation. By degrees, with the use of a volt-reducing device, they have taken the current little by little until they have insured themselves to the current's greatest power.

A feat not yet performed, but promised, is to convey current through their bodies to a motor to which will be fitted a large cornsheller or some other machine requiring power to run it.

No Need to Stop Work.

When your doctor orders you to stop work, it staggers you. "I can't," you say. You know you are weak, run down and failing in health day by day, but you must work as long as you can stand. What you need is Electric Bitters to give tone, strength, and vigor to your system, to prevent breakdown and build you up. Don't be weak, sickly or ailing when Electric Bitters will benefit you from the first dose. Thousands bless them for their glorious health and strength. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all druggists.

THOMAS OF ROURBON

Takes Issue With His Party
On Free Trade With Canada.

In a report of the Farmers' Institute at Mt. Sterling, appears this: "Senator Claude Thomas, of Paris, who will be the next Democratic President pro tem, of the Kentucky Senate, in his speech denounced the Canadian reciprocity treaty as being injurious to the farmers. Senator Thomas said that the farmers have no exclusive privileges or wealth-maturing preferences, but they certainly have a right and should demand to be placed upon an equal footing under the law with their fellow-citizens of America. Senator Thomas had for his subject 'Legislation, for and Against the Farmer,' and in most measured terms denounced the Canadian reciprocity treaty as a huge swindle worked off on the farmer. He believes that the adoption of the treaty will bring ruin to the farmer and desolation to the farm, and he did not hesitate to say so."

Not a Word of Scandal.

Upon arising in the morning, I felt very lame and I tired easily. The kidney secretions contained sediment and were too frequent in passage at night, causing me much annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and I procured a box. They proved a wonderful benefit. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills."

THE HATPIN JABBING TIME

Fine Time for an Artist to Take a Picture of a Matinee Audience.

What a busy buzz there is at the close of a matinee, when the women put on their hats and go to jabbing at their heads with those long hatpins. It is like a soft breeze blowing across the stubble field. One of the man kind looking on swings between fear and delight—fear that they will pierce their pretty heads, and delight at the grace with which they jab.

It would be a fine stroke of policy if some artist could take a picture of a matinee audience at the pin jabbing moment. The postures, the struggling arms, the anxious faces of the poor, innocent man, here and there, waiting for the incident to close, would make a scene of such grace and innocence that everybody would want a picture of it. And if such a picture could be preserved for ten years and shown to the generation then on the scene of life, it would command the price of a Van Dyke or a Murillo.

TURN ABOUT.

At Cumberland, Md., the colored servants, as a rule, go to their own homes at night. The cook in the family of the Episcopal clergyman not only does this but of late has arrived at the rectory too late to cook breakfast. Hence her mistress lately told her that for each breakfast missed there would be a reduction in her weekly wages. Dinnah passively assented to this, but next day the mistress heard the maid next door say to her:

"Pears to me yo go to work mighty late."

"I gets to work when I gets ready," was the reply.

"How does you manage about de breakfast?"

"Oh, I pays de missus to cook de breakfasts."—Housekeeper.

HOMESTEAD LAWS.

The homestead laws are of two classes: those enacted by congress and those enacted by state legislatures. The primary object of the first class is to enable citizens without capital to acquire homes. The main object of the second class is to secure homes, once acquired, against the claims of creditors. Legislation of the first class has done much to stimulate the settlement and improvement of wild, unoccupied land. That of the second class has saved countless families from pauperism.

THE TURBINE.

The first steam turbine fitted vessel, the Turbinia, was constructed by the Hon. C. A. Parsons at his works at Newcastle-on-Tyne. The Turbinia was a small vessel, some 100 feet in length, and her first trip was made November 4, 1894. The system rapidly developed, owing to the increased speed and the economy in coal, and it is safe to say that it is destined to do away with all others in the near future.

TROUT FISHING AT NIGHT

Full Instructions Are Given by the Greatest of All Anglers, Izaak
Walton.

You are to know there is night as well as day fishing for a trout; and that in the night the best trouts come out of their holes. And the manner of taking them is on the top of the water with a great lob or garden worm, or rather two, which you are to fish with in a stream where the waters run somewhat quietly, for in a stream the bait will not be so well discerned. I say in a quiet or dead place, near to some swift, there draw your bait over the top of the water, to and fro, and if there be a good trout in the hole, he will take it, especially if the night be dark, for then he is bold, and lies near the top of the water, watching the motion of any frog or water rat, or mouse, that swims betwixt him and the sky; these he hunts after if he sees the water but wrinkle or move in one of these dead holes, where these great old trouts usually lie, near to their holds; for you are to note that the great old trout is both subtle and fearful, and lies close all day, and does not usually stir out of his hold, but lies in it as close in the day as the timorous hare does in her form; for the chief feeding of either is seldom in the day, but usually in the night, and then the great trout feeds very boldly.—Walton's Compleat Angler.

Bank With Royal Depositors.

The English banking world is congratulating itself upon the receipt of a large and acceptable account. In fact, King Manuel of Portugal has honored the house of Coutts & Co. of London with the deposit of his private fortune, and England is so much richer for Manuel's loss. This firm of Coutts is a remarkable establishment, by the way, for it has attracted the patronage of nobly all the royalty which has had occasion to leave money in London. Every English king from George II. to the present George has kept his wealth in their vaults, and Louis Philippe, the shah of Persia and Leopold of Belgium have all patronized the Coutts.

Fallacies About Paper.

Chinese rice paper, said Lord Rededale in his address before the Royal Photographic society, had no rice whatever in its composition. That curiously brittle, pure white material used for the marvelous drawings of Chinese artists was manufactured from the pith of a tree peculiar to Formosa. His lordship also stated that the first paper was never made of raw cotton. The Chinese did not use it, and history began with the making of rag paper, both in Arabia more than ten centuries ago, and also in Europe when the Crusaders, having brought the industry westward, the first paper manufactory was established in the last years of the thirteenth century.—Westminster Gazette.

PRESCRIPTION HARD TO FILL.

Doctor's Orders Had to Be Disregarded by Nurse.

When we were house doctors 15 years ago in one of the large hospitals of Boston, says a writer in the Herald of that city, one of our number was at times inclined to imitate too freely when he had an evening free from his surgical duties. One night he came back to the hospital at 11 o'clock, and though perfectly able to walk, his brain was a bit fogged.

As was usual, he went the rounds of the wards to see if his patients were comfortable. One of them complained of pain and the doctor wrote a prescription in the "order book" for the nurse to give the patient, and then went off to bed. As was customary he made a morning visit before the arrival of the head surgeon, and as he reached the bed of the man for whom he wrote the prescription the previous evening, the nurse said "she was very sorry, but she couldn't give the medicine as he had directed," and at the same time she handed him the order book.

The doctor was overcome, for he had written "Three roller bandages to be taken every three hours."

NEVER RECOVERED.

Mrs. E. Z.—So you haven't been able to work for 20 years?

Wearry Wags—Yes'm. You see, dere wuz a heavy mortgage on de old home and I strained myself tryin' to lift it.

CONSIDERING A CHANGE.

Lucy caused her mistress a lot of worry by receiving the attentions of a dashing head waiter at a seaside resort hotel. "Really, you ought to speak to Lucy about it," so the friends of the girl's mistress told her. "It would be too bad to see Lucy in love with a married man." Speak to her she did, but to her surprise, she saw Lucy parading the boardwalk the next evening in the same old company, and on the following day Lucy was taken severely to task.

"Lucy," said her mistress, severely, "I thought I told you that that man is married already."

"Yes'm," replied Lucy, demurely, "Ah knows that. But he's dissatisfied."

LIQUID OF IMMENSE VALUE.

A Hungarian chemist named Brunn claims to have discovered a liquid chemical compound which doubles the density of nearly every kind of stone and renders it waterproof, and imparts to all metals qualities which defy oxygen and rust. While traveling in Greece some 25 years ago he noticed that the mortar in stones of ruins which were known to be over 2,000 years old was as hard, fresh, and tenacious as if it had been made only a year. He secured a piece of the mortar, and has been working on it ever since until now.

THE MARRIED LIFE.

"That new neighbor of ours," said Gaddie, "seems to be very fond of declaring that 'life is full of contradictions.' What does he mean by that, anyway?"

"I suppose," replied Henpeck, "that he simply means to say he's married."

THAT'S SO.

"The man on the Springfield (Mo.) Republican says matrimony is like poker, it is all in the draw."

"All right as far as it goes, but in poker you can drop out after the draw if you feel like it."—Houston Post.

RECIPE FOR FRIED CHICKEN

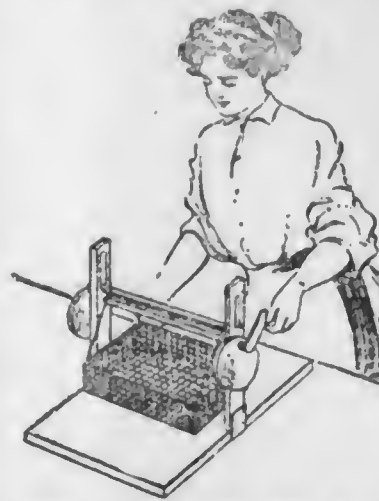

Southern Style Delicious—Fry Joins In Fat of Bacon and Dip In Cream and Flour.

One chicken, 1/2 pound sliced bacon, two eggs, 1 1/2 cups of milk or thin cream, flour, salt and pepper. For good results choose a tender young chicken, clean it and cut it at the joints, then let it stand in strong salt water for a few minutes, and after draining it, wipe it dry; fry the bacon and beat an egg with light; rub each piece of chicken with the salt and pepper, using a heaping teaspoonful of salt to a dash of pepper to each two pounds of fowl; dip the chicken in the beaten egg and then in flour until covered, remove the fried bacon to a hot platter and put the chicken in the hot fat; brown well on all sides, then cover the skillet and cook slowly until tender, turning occasionally; put the chicken on the platter with the bacon, add a tablespoonful of flour to the fat, a dash of salt, milk or cream, and finally the yolk of the remaining egg mixed with a tablespoonful of cream; when thick, serve with the chicken and bacon on the platter. If you wish to follow the southern style don't fail to have cold boiled ham, some boiled rice and hot biscuit or corn bread to go with the chicken.

NEW DISH-WASHING DEVICE

Articles Are Swirled Around In Water In Wire Basket, and Thoroughly Cleaned.

A simple form of dish-washing machine that a handy man can make at home has been invented by a Minnesota woman. It is designed primarily for use in hotels and restaurants, where the dishes are too numerous to be washed by hand, but it will be found a useful article in large households. The apparatus consists of a base board with two upright posts in the center of either side. These posts have a rotatable shaft passing through them with an eccentric wheel on each end and a crank to turn it. Just above this are slots to receive a cross bar and guide its upward and downward movement, and a wire basket is slung on this cross bar. The machine is placed in sink or tub full of hot water and the basket filled with dishes. The crank is then turned; and as the eccentric wheels revolve they raise and lower the cross bar resting on them and thus raise and lower the basket, with the result that the dishes are thoroughly rinsed by the water, which should be kept hot enough to clean them thoroughly.

German Apple Cake.

Mix together and sift a pint of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder; rub in two tablespoonfuls of butter, then mix to a soft dough or very thick batter with one beaten egg and about half a cupful of milk. Turn this into a shallow, well-greased pan and press partly into it quartered and peeled apples, arranging them in regular circles or rows according to the shape of the pan. Sprinkle them with three tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar mixed with a third of a teaspoonful of cinnamon, bake in a hot oven and serve hot with cream.

To Clean a Black Skirt.

It is possible to clean a black skirt with very little trouble. Lay it flat on a clean table. Remove all grease spots with brown paper and a hot iron, then with a sponge dipped in strong coffee rub over the entire dress, paying special attention to the front and edge of the skirt. After the whole of the skirt has been sponged and while it is still damp, iron on the wrong side until perfectly dry.

Green Tomato Peeling a Relish.

Slice without peeling one gallon of green tomatoes and six large onions. Add one quart of vinegar, one pound sugar, one tablespoonful each salt and ground mustard, one teaspoonful each ground cloves and allspices and cook gently together until the vegetables are tender. Protect from violent heat while cooking by putting an asbestos mat under the kettle. Pack in small glass jars and seal.

Swiss Soup.

Five gallons of water, six potatoes and three turnips, sliced, a small piece of salt pork, boil five hours until perfectly dissolved and the consistency of pea soup, filling up as it boils away. Instead of the pork, you can add butter the size of an egg. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

Cabbage Salad.

Shred a white cabbage fine and pour over it a dressing such as you make for cold slaw or French dressing with a little made mustard beaten in it.

HOW GIRL WAS OUTWITTED

Judicious Use of Want Ad Columns Gives Housewife Cause for Exultation.

W. L. Hall, want ad man for the Journal, was checking up for the day and preparing to leave. The hands of the clock chronicled 11:45 p. m. The telephone rang.

"Will you put an ad in tomorrow evening's paper for me? I want a hired girl," called a sleepy feminine voice.

"Can you call in early tomorrow and have one of the clerks take it, please?" was the response of the ad man.

"But I want to give it now," pleaded the woman. "You see, the hired girl is in bed and asleep and I will not have a chance to telephone tomorrow without her hearing me. I want to bed early this evening to get her out of the way. As soon as I found she was asleep I came down stairs to get you."

"All right, then, let the ad come; we'll see that it gets in the evening paper," responded Hall.

The next evening the woman called in to say that she wanted the ad taken out. "The girl saw it and quit. I had two other applications within an hour after she left," was the exultant explanation.—Sioux City Journal.

THAT HORRID LASSITUDE.

One of the curses of the age is that horrid feeling of lassitude that so many of us suffer from, but pay little heed to.

If a person has slept well at night it is not natural to be drowsy, sluggish and inert during the day. If that is your normal condition go cause-searching.

Often the feeling is caused by a malarial condition and a little quinine or a change of air will overcome it.

Frequently it is due to overdoing; exhausted nerves is a recognized cause of a heavy brain and "draggy" bones.

Probably the chief cause is a weak stomach. Indigestion makes one sluggish, so does overeating without proper exercise.

The cures are normal living, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and proper rest. It is decidedly dangerous to seek to overcome lassitude with drugs or stimulants. The effect is temporary and the reaction bad.

USELESS PECULATION.

"Metaphysics," said Mayor Crump at a Democratic banquet in Memphis, "is a subject that always makes me think of an elderly couple in Chattanooga."

"I often wonder," the wife said, "one day to her husband, 'whether all these vows and protestations you made me during our courtship were really true?'"

"Well, my dear," the husband answered, mildly, "what's the difference whether they are true or not, since we both believed them?"

UNVEILED A TABLET.

The National Society of the Daughters of 1812 decorated the Polly, an aged vessel that was built in 1805. A tablet was placed on the vessel, which is now used as a freighter, telling her history and the part she played in the war of 1812. Mrs. N. S. D. Lincoln, who was present, is the granddaughter of the first captain of the Polly, and she is now the president of the Maine Daughters of 1812.

Gov. Dix is out in a letter advising New York Democrats to ignore Sheehan as the caucus nominee and vote for some candidate for Senator upon whom the party can unite.

Tennessee is making a crusade against the hook worm disease prevalent in half the counties and the four physicians in the field report that the disease is easily and rapidly cured.

The House killed the tariff bill, one of the Republican pet schemes, in the closing hours of Congress. It provided for a prominent board to consider tariff revisions and head off action by the incoming Democratic Congress.

Edwin Scott, of Lebanon, Ky., eloped to Jeffersonville with a fourteen year-old girl Thursday, where they were married. At Campbellsville the bride's father forcibly took her off the train. The groom is in Lebanon making a legal fight by habeas corpus to regain his wife.

The queue of the Chinese which has been a fashion for more than 250 years, has been cut off by official order, which is being generally obeyed. Just before the successful Manchu campaign in 1644, the commander-in-chief of the Chinese army brought the Manchus to go to Peking with him to drive out some insurgents. They consented on condition that he wear a queue, in their fashion. He agreed, and then the Manchus hastened on ahead of him, took Peking, and set their prince on the throne. Ten new rulers required the conquered Chinese to adopt the Manchu costume, including the queue, which, in its origin a badge of humiliation, became in time a national pride.

Bob And Luke.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 3.—Senator-elect Luke Lea and Senator Bob Taylor will sit side by side in the United States Senate.

Senator Taylor decided that he ought to pick out a desirable seat for his colleague before the more desirable seats were chosen by the newly-arriving Senators. He saw Sergeant-at-Arms Dan Ransdall, who arranged for Mr. Lea to secure the seat of Senator Root of New York. This seat is on the front row of the Senate on the Democratic side. Senator Root gives it up because the Republican Senators will be compelled in the next Congress to move over to the Republican side of the chamber.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is fully closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

To Install Meters.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Clarksville City Council it was declared to issue $60,000 water works bonds. The money will be used over the city to erect a new pumping station at a cost of $12,000 and to build a new reservoir, the present one being too small for efficient service.

Sweet Clover in Pendleton County.

The farmers of Pendleton county seem to have solved one of the great problems of the farm—how to restore fertility to the soil and at the same time use it. Many glowing accounts come from there as to how sweet clover has redeemed the tobacco-worn hill lands and at the same time furnished the best of pasture, and hay second only to alfalfa.

Items From Gracey.

Bro. Gregston filled his appointment here last 4th Saturday and Sunday and was greeted with large and attentive audiences. The subject 11 a.m. was 1 Cor. 15:18—Christian Fidelity. He emphasized the fact that to be useful we must be faithful. At the evening service the house was almost filled with attentive listeners. The pastor preached from Gen. 41:39—44 subject, "From the Dungeon to the Throne." He showed how a poor and cast down man may rise to a position of honor and usefulness, by the grace of God. At this service one joined by letter. Our church is taking on new strength, and the outlook is bright and encouraging. Let all of our people wake up and rally to the church and her work. We have a good Sunday School, which we hope to improve as the weather and roads get good. We want the mothers and fathers in the Sunday school and they ought to be.

Mrs. Gregston's niece and nephew, Miss Martha and Alfred Graves, of Melburn, Ky., are visiting her this week.

The little Torian children, Misses Lillian and Jean, are staying with Bro. and sister Gregston while their parents are on a visit to relatives in Mississippi. They left Feb. 26th and will be gone until March 18 or 20.

Bennettstown Notes.

Bennettstown, Ky., March 4.—We are having nice spring weather most all plant beds are burnt in this vicinity and little chicken are seen in many yards.

Mr. Sam Roberson was given a wedding dinner at his mother's which was enjoyed by the few friend and relatives, after which he and wife went to his home. Mr. A. O. Sunday, of Thompsonville, Illinois who has been visiting his wife's relatives, Mrs. Katie Sowell and others, left Saturday for home. He had had been to the Cumberland mountains in view of a land trade.

Rev. G. L. Woodruff will fill his apartment at Sharon church Sunday. We have Sunday School and hope to have more in attendance as weather and roads are improving.

May want to attend the services of meetings at the M. E. church at Lafayette to hear Mr. Davis.

Might Be Dead Today.

Garden City, Kas.—In a letter from Mrs. James Hamner, of this city, she says, "I firmly believe that I would not be alive today, if it were not for Cardui. I had been a sufferer from womanly troubles all my life, until I found that great remedy. I feel that I can't praise it too highly." Are you a woman, suffering from some of the troubles, to which a woman is peculiarly liable? If so, why not try Cardui, the woman's tonic? You can rely on Cardui. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and acts gently but surely without bad after-effects. "Twins" help you. Ask your druggist.

A Surprise Party.

Last Wednesday evening, Feb. 22, 1911 at 7 p. m. about twenty of our friends came into our home unawares in honor of my birthday, Feb. 22nd, and gave the pastor a handkerchief shower, as a birthday present.

They made it a delightful occasion. The time was spent in contest games until 9 o'clock. Then after being served with refreshments, the crowd departed, all saying they had a nice time, and wishing the pastor many more returns of this happy occasion. They left us feeling that our lot has been cast among some of the best people in the world. They know how to treat their pastor and wife and make them feel like they are appreciated. By their manner of treatment we cannot tell the Baptists from members of other denominations. All join together in doing nice things for their preachers. It is natural that we should want to remain always with these good people. They have shown us many kindnesses and done many things to make us happy and contented among them. May the Lord make their pastor a leader worthy to be followed. We would have them all come on all such occasions.

We have a splendid lot of young people in our little town, and peace and good will abounds among them. They largely compose the Sunday School and church at this place. May their lives never know more sorrows than at present.

Yours truly,
C. H. Gregston.

Lost Count of Husbands:

Polly Ann Weeb, the muchly married woman of Newburg, who has had so many husbands she can't remember the exact number, was married for the ninth time according to the official records, but the fourth time according to her own version, Thursday afternoon when she was made the wife of Harrison Strodes, aged 65.

Polly Ann claims to be all of 70 years and still clings to her first name of Weeb, given her by James Weeb whom she married when only 18 years of age. They have been coming so fast of late and the names have been changed so quickly that Mrs. Weeb could not remember whether she was Mrs. Jones or Mrs. Smith, so she stuck to the cognomen of Weeb. It has served its purpose and despite the fact that Strodes is her ninth husband she is still known over southern Indiana by the name of Weeb.

When questioned Thursday at the clerk's office she admitted to having had three previous husbands and claimed that all of them had died. The last she said was in 1900. However records go to show that she has had four husbands whom she divorced and four who died.—Evansville Courier.

CULTURED CLARICE

Dotty Wilk had gone visiting in Chicago and when she returned home with a bunch of puffs on the back of her head which she hadn't taken away with her and a ghost book and a pig book excitement spread through the village.

Dotty had attended a party while she was in the city and the hostess had made everybody do a page in her ghost book. It was a bound volume of blank pages folded through the middle and the process was to open a page, splutter a lot of ink-blot on it, fold it back and press it down hard. Then you signed your name and somebody else cried, "Oh, now let me try it!"

In the pig book you drew a pig with your eyes shut and you couldn't take the pencil from the paper, after you had started.

Everybody went crazy over these fads and Peterson, the druggist, who also sold stationery and magazines, had to order a second consignment of the popular volumes.

Nearly all the girls owned either one book or the other. But when somebody asked Clarice Emerson how many pages in hers she had filled the questioner ran up against a stone wall. Clarice elevated her delicate eyebrows a trifle and said faintly that she was interested neither in ghosts nor in pigs. "I have a sentiment book, however, which I will show you," she said.

Thereupon she laid in the hands of the abashed young person who had introduced the subject a book which Clarice herself had made of pale-blue linen paper and water-color paper covers, laced together with blue ribbon to match. Clarice had painted a spray of wild roses on the cover. It was, indeed, a chaste volume.

"What's it for?" stammered the puzzled holder of the sentiment book.

Clarice looked gently pained. "I am going to have my friends write beautiful quotations of noble sentiments of their own in it," she said, softly.

Everybody said that it was exactly like Clarice Emerson and that she was a ridiculous stuck-up thing, and who cared, anyhow? Clarice always sat with her eyes looking upward, like St. Cecilia at the organ, and her clothes were always limp and draped. She said things with the tips of her fingers and she talked about your soul. So she was not exactly popular but her father was prominent and she could not be snubbed.

When she started out snoring people with her sentiment book people broke into cold perspiration and twisted their feet awkwardly around chair legs and bit their tongues and gripped the pen hard trying to remember something noble. They turned the pages to see who had written what and they murmured, "How lovely!" or "How true!"

After stock sentiments, like "Art is long and time is fleeting," "Be good and you will be happy," and "Count that day lost whose low descending sun views from thy hand no worthy action done," had all been used up in Clarice's book late comers had terrible times. Secretly they thought the pig books lots more fun. In fact, whenever Clarice appeared in the distance, with a limp volume adorned with wild roses in her hand, there was a stampede.

Artie Kline made a great hit at a party which Clarice did not attend by going around asking every one in a dying-swan tone, "Won't you write a noble sentiment in my little book? Oh, do write a gem of thought in my book!"

When Professor Gittles, the new teacher of English in the high school, reached town and it was seen that he was barely thirty and handsome in an austere way, the feminine population became deeply interested. He was invited everywhere and pig and ghost books were thrown at him by girls of every sort. It seemed very daring to ask a professor to draw a pig with his eyes shut, so it became a popular game.

While he was filling pages in seven assorted books which had been thrust at him, Clarice Emerson drifted through the crowd one night. She smiled at him with a beautiful mingling of respectful fear and modest hope and said, sweetly: "Dear Professor Gittles, may I ask you to inscribe a sentiment in my little book? Some great thought of some famous writer or of your own. Of course, I should be especially pleased with one of your own."

Her glance at the frivolous pig and ghost books before him was delicately contemptuous and the professor was instantly furious at their owners for having put him in this humiliating position before so cultured a young person. He arose with alacrity.

"Certainly, Miss Emerson, he said. "Come, let us sit over in this quiet corner by the lamp and I will look at your wonderful book and compose my thoughts. It is such a treat to find one so young and charming with such high ideals! And did you do the cover, too?"

Of course, after that it was all over except the rice and old shoes. The other girls, when they got over their rage, said that both Clarice and Prof. Gittles were stupid, affected bores, and who cared, anyhow? Then they ostentatiously went and bought more pig books.

BINDON'S CURE

In view of the many fatal illnesses which Robert Bindon had enjoyed it was remarkable that he was still alive and well. No one ever would have suspected him of being a weakling. Bindon was thirty-six, over six feet tall and broad correspondingly, and ate three good meals each day. Further, he did enough work for ten ordinary men, yet every summer, when he had a breathing space, he always ran across to Europe and immediately approached death's door.

The attacks always hit him when he reached Sonderbad, which was noted for its medicinal springs. Of course, an easy solution of the difficulty would seem to be staying away from Sonderbad, but he had got into the habit of going there. Especially did he depend on Dr. Jana, who always attended him and with great difficulty dragged him back from dissolution. Bindon thought Dr. Jana one of the wonders of the human race and often talked about him to Juanita Drane before they were married.

Juanita was one of those ethereal, fragile-looking creatures who always run things to suit themselves without any one's suspecting how in creation they do it. Apparently she was a clinging vine and a bundle of nerves, and she sympathized sweetly with Bindon when he mourned over his sufferings and sighed because illness wasted so much time for him.

"It's dreadful to be so afflicted," he told her, "but it can't be helped."

Juanita said that she supposed it couldn't.

Bindon and she had been married several months when they went to Europe. There Bindon enjoyed her pleasure in the sights, new to her, though old to him. Like a boy let out of school, he joyously conducted the trip. Naturally, therefore, his wife was alarmed one day to see him holding his head and looking serious.

"Don't worry, love," he told her solemnly, "but I fear I am going to have an attack of something. I can feel it coming on!"

Just as Juanita's heart stopped beating in dread she recalled something that sent the blood back to her cheeks—she remembered that the train was approaching Sonderbad and she also remembered a vow which she had privately made back in the days before she married Bindon.

She did not go into hysterics, as he had half expected she would, but merely said he must get to the hotel as soon as possible and lie down. Then when he faintly requested her to make haste if she would save his life, she sent for Dr. Jana. Leaving Bindon a beautifully patient sufferer, Juanita hastened down stairs and lay in wait for her husband's physician. There was a light in her blue eyes that spoke determination.

Dr. Jana was charmed to meet the wife of his so distinguished patient, but he said he must hasten to the sufferer. Then, to his amazement he found himself dragged by a small white hand into a secluded corner, while a remarkably pretty face bent close to his whiskered one. Juanita concentrated all her nervous force on her hypnotic gaze and her German verbs.

"See here, Dr. Jana," she said in a sudden clear, new tone that held the famous doctor in instant attention. "Before you go upstairs to Robert I want to tell you what you are to say. He isn't sick—not a bit! There isn't a thing the matter with him! He's just full of imagination and he's got the habit of coming over to Sonderbad every year and trying to die, and I won't have it! His state of mind is a nuisance, because it spoils our trip! I want you to go and tell him that he is well and that nothing is wrong—do you understand?"

There are some things that even an autocratic physician can't manage, and Dr. Jana recognized that Juanita was one of them. Still hypnotized, he felt himself going upstairs to the invalid.

"No!" he said, gruffly, "you are not going blind! Those shooting pains come from smoking! Stop cigars for a couple of days and your eyes will be all right!"

His patient described some more symptoms.

"No!" barked Dr. Jana. "You haven't got cancer of the stomach! It's indigestion from overloading it!"

A little later he roared: "No, it isn't paralysis in your leg—you've just cramped a muscle from lying in bed! There isn't a thing the matter with you, Herr Bindon!"

"Isn't it lovely!" Juanita cooed when the great Dr. Jana had left and she was throwing up the window shades and removing the glasses and spoons that Bindon had already ordered set out for his medicines. "Dr. Jana says you're all right! I'm so relieved! And we can go on to Vienna tomorrow, can't we, dear?"

"If I'm well enough," said her husband, severely.

"Why, aren't you going to get up now?" demanded his wife in a surprised tone. "I want to walk through the town, and today's our only chance!"

"Juanita," said Bindon in a hurt voice, as he clambered out of bed, "I die it's your fault, but I'll sacrifice myself and go! I think Dr. Jana is getting old—it's quite apparent that he isn't as good as he used to be!"

That was the end of Bindon's series of fatal illnesses at Sonderbad.

HARRY'S PROMISE

Come, lads, I'll tell you what we'll do; we'll drop into the 'Reindeer,' and order bot punch and cigars. What do you say? All in favor sing out aye!"

"Aye! aye!" shouted half a dozen youthful voices; but Harry Hilton stood silent.

His comrades turned upon him almost simultaneously.

"What's up, old fellow? Why don't you speak out? You've made two dollars clear of your wages; you're not too miserly to have a glass of punch, and a social smoke, are you?"

"Not I; I'm no more miserly than the rest of you, I take it," answered the young man, stoutly.

"Then, why do you bold back? I say, comrades, come on; the evening's chill, and we've had a hard day's work, and a glass of hot punch won't go bad. Here we go, all of us, to a man!"

"No, we don't," responded Harry.

He was a tall, handsome young fellow, a head and shoulders above the tallest of his fellow workmen, and foreman in the iron manufactory of Messrs. Kirby & Kelth, where the whole party found employment.

They gathered about him in the chill twilight.

"What's got into the chap?" they cried. "I say, Harry, what's come over you? Why don't you come on! We're in for a carouse, and maybe a dance to wind up with. Aren't you going along?"

"No!"

"Then give us your reason. Are you going to turn parson all of a sudden, or do you hate to spend your extra earnings? Come on, lads, we'll club together and let him drink free."

"So we will," answered half a dozen voices.

Harry's swarthy cheek began to flush.

"You know me too well to talk like that, lads," he said. "I'm not contented with my money, as you shall see, if you'll mention anything else but the public house and drink; I can't agree to that."

"And your reasons; let's have 'em. Are you turning parson?"

"No, but I've made a promise to my mother, and she's a widow, and I her only son—I've given her my word never to drink in a public house, and I shan't break it. That's my reason, lads, and goodnight to you!"

And the worst of them was not bad enough to advise the breaking of such a promise as that.

A year went by and a dozen of the poked hands were up for promotion. Messrs. Kirby & Kelth had a position of great responsibility to award, and one that brought excellent pay. When the minor promotions were all made just five young men were left, and to one of these the lucrative position was to go. Stalwart, honest, upright young fellows, the whole five of them.

The senior partner of the firm pushed up his spectacles, and looked about him in some indecision.

"Really, my good fellows," he said, "I'm sorely puzzled how to proceed. I've only the one position to bestow, and here you are, five in number, and equal in deserving merit. How am I to decide?"

"Cast lots, boss," suggested one.

The boss smiled, and seemed for a minute or two to favor the idea, then all of a sudden his eye sparkled.

"A better thought than that has struck me," he said. "See here, my lads, which one of you now can say he never took a dram in a public house? Ah! here's a test for you! Speak out, now, like men."

"I can say it, sir," spoke out Harry Hilton, in his ringing voice; "I never took a drink in a public house in my life."

"Come, Mr. Hilton, honor bright; you're sure of what you say?" asked Kirby.

"I'm sure, sir, or I should not have said so," replied the young man, proudly.

"Aye, boss, and we can back him in what he says," chimed in his comrades. "We've no more to say; the place is his."

And so it was.

Harry Hilton was appointed to this trustful situation; and it transpired that in a few years more he was taken into the firm as a partner; and he won and wedded for his wife pretty Lizzie, the only child and heiress of Mr. Kirby. And all this great, good fortune came of his keeping his promise.

Sandown and Poker.

There are two games which at the present moment are absorbing attention in those places where two or three—or more—beings gathered together feel that time can only be killed by playing something at which you can either lose your money or your temper. This being so, they have found two ideal games at which it is possible to squander both these assets. The one is sandown, the other is poker. Neither is new, of course, but both threaten to have the vogue of bridge. One can gamble at them to any extent, and what more can anyone want, for this means excitement, which is the veritable breath of modern nostrils.—Lady's Pictorial.

Considerate.

"Did that pretty Miss Peacham say she would darn your socks for you?"

"No; but she was kind enough to recommend a brand that wouldn't need darning."

Their Wish

"I wish," said Inglesby, "that we didn't have to go!"

"So do I!" agreed his wife, shamelessly.

As the party was given in their honor their attitude was all the more reprehensible.

"Our very first evening at home!" mourned Mrs. Inglesby.

They had been married two months and were just back from their wedding trip.

"Of course, Tom and his wife mean well," conceded Inglesby, "but you'd think they would realize we didn't care a hang about rushing out into society this instant we stepped off the train and before we'd really seen our own apartments!"

"We were supposed to get back last week," said Mrs. Inglesby, who wished to be fair.

"What if we were?" exploded her husband. "What's a week at home? I'm tired of running around!"

"So'm I!" said Mrs. Inglesby. "That reading lamp is a dear—I wish we could sit by it and you'd read to me, angel!"

"I'd like to, darling," said Inglesby mournfully. "What a bore a card party is! And there's my smoking jacket!"

"And that sweet lace and silk negligee I bought in Paris!" half wisp Mrs. Inglesby. "I'd love to put it on!"

"You'd be a peach in it!" asserted Inglesby. "And to think we're prevented being comfortable and doing as we'd like just because of fool notions of fool friends of ours who insist on welcoming us home! Can't we cut it?"

"Mercy, no!" said his wife. "There are to be 15 tables and a gorgeous supper! And in our honor!"

"I'd rather stay at home and eat rabbit that you made," said Inglesby. "Consume the luck!"

"It does seem ridiculous," said Mrs. Inglesby, rising from the table. "I wonder what I'd better wear."

"You look prettier than any one else in anything you have!" said Inglesby valiantly. "It doesn't make any differences what you wear! Wear a kitchen apron or a raincoat and you'll beat all the other women there!"

"Goose!" said Mrs. Inglesby. "I don't care what other people say if only you think I look nice."

"You always look nice," said Inglesby. "My, but that rocker does seem comfortable! And my smoking stand so handy to it!"

"It's just a shame!" agreed his wife. "And you hate so to get into evening clothes! I'll put the studs and links in your shirt!"

"You are an angel," said her husband, and kissed her. "Why can't we stay at home when all I want is to talk to you?"

"It is funny," said his wife. "I don't seem to take a bit of interest in talking to any one else. I'm perfectly contented to be just with you. Well, I suppose I might as well dress. I guess I'll wear my lavender marquisette and pearls."

"You'll knock the spots off 'em," said her husband. "Where's my white tias?"

"Society is a perfect bore," mourned Mrs. Inglesby. "I shall hate the whole evening! It is just wasted!"

"It spoils our return home," said her husband. "Our first evening, when we wanted to look over all the wedding presents and realize that we were among our very own things! What's the good of a man's having a home and a wife if he isn't to be allowed to enjoy them in peace? I'd like to give Tom a piece of my mind!"

"It's pure selfishness on their part," said Mrs. Inglesby, dusting powder on her nose. "I could cry when I think of it!"

"What's Tom's new number?" inquired her husband as he got into his dress coat.

"I'll look on the invitation," said his wife as she rustled into the living room in her lavender gown.

There was an instant's silence and then a little shriek.

"Jack!" she cried. "I made a mistake in my date! It isn't tonight! It's a week from tonight! And I've got this lovely dress on and everything! If that isn't horrid!"

"Well, I'll be blowed!" said Inglesby, disgustedly. "And me in these glad rags, and that tie is tied right, if I do say it! I'd kind of liked to see everybody tonight!"

"Well, there's nothing to do but stay home, I suppose," said Mrs. Inglesby, dolefully. "What a shame!"

"Yes, isn't it?" said Inglesby, sadly.

Highway Humor.

In a little commune in Brabant is to be seen a big notice board at the entrance of the town. On it appears the following notice to automobilists:

"100 kilometers an hour." When we know that 100 kilometers equals 62 miles it scarcely need be added that the wit of the commune has added a thought to the notice.

At Dinant a board is to be seen on a good level road recommending motorists the "allure d'un petit cheval ordinaire au petit trot." But the palm for original notices, we learn, belongs to a little English town. On the board one reads: "Please drive slowly."

Five hundred yards further on is another board, bearing the words: "Thank you." As the French journal from which we take our story observes, it is an exquisite example of politeness.—London Globe.

ONE OF LIFE'S ILLUSIONS

"And they lived happy ever after!" That is the way the stories we heard in childhood always ended. The hero and heroine married, and their troubles terminated. We were always glad when they were safely joined, and all trials were over, and everything was lovely.

Now, in real life, that period is just where trouble begins. It is a pity it is true, but so it is.

The young girl does not think so. Her young man does not think so. The old folks creak about it, but the young ones laugh at their evil-omened talk, and mutually assure each other that once they are married, everything will flow on as smoothly as a summer sea or a country mill pond.

And when, after marriage, storms arise, and things get tempestuous, the young people are disappointed, and accuse each other of being to blame, and they argue, and bicker, and twit, and make themselves generally uncomfortable, because they have not learned the lesson that we old stagers learned long ago, that life is a "warfare," and there is a good deal of fighting to be done before we can stand inside the fortress of peace and safety.

A woman might be an angel in skirt and shirt waist, and a man might be a masculine club in trousers and side whiskers, and still they cannot avoid trouble.

It is the common lot. Nobody "lives happy ever after." No matter how angelic your disposition, you are liable to have toothache. A saint, if he should get a pair of ill-fitting boots, would be just as likely to breed corns as the most hardened sinner on the footstool. If John Buryan had eaten green apples, he would have had as good a chance for the stomach as any irreverent writer of pirate stories. The fact that he conceived "Pilgrim's Progress" wouldn't have saved him.

We are all subject to the laws of universal nature, and we cannot evade them. We must take the consequences of being mortal.

We might just as well make up our minds to take things as they come, and let them come without going to meet them.

If you quarrel with your husband, console yourself with thinking that you are not the first woman who has done it, and you will probably not be the last. And it isn't likely that you will live more than ninety-five or a hundred years to follow it up. And if you die first, he will tell the minister who presides at the funeral that you never gave him a cross worn in your life, and that you and he always thought alike.

So your memory will be saved.

If your children turn out bad, take the comfort home to you that other people have bad children and have lived through it. It is one of those things which is happening right along every day, and there is nothing remarkable about it.

Life is a series of disenchantments. In our youth we cherish illusions, and when experience has swept them away we find fault with fate and with Providence, and think we are hardly used.

Every life, however sheltered and protected, has its sorrows and trials. We cannot hope to escape them. But we can make them lighter by accepting them as natural consequences, and being willing to bear them as a part of our discipline; just as we bore the hard seats and the cross teacher in school; just as we bore the sparkings our good mother gave us in our younger days, to teach us that our ways were not her ways, and to impress upon us the fact that all the way along there is a guiding hand higher than our own will which shapes and directs our immortal destiny.

Feats of a Champion Swordsman.

Squadron Corporal Major Eggleton, one of the finest swordsmen in the British army, is retiring shortly from the Royal Horse Guards (Blues) after 21 years' service.

One of the corporal major's sword feats is to cut in two an apple resting on the neck of a kneeling assistant. After a swift downward sword cut the halves of the apple roll away and the assistant rises unharmed. Another feat is with a horizontal stroke to sever an apple placed on a man's head.

The corporal major has won many prizes at the military tournament and has given displays of his skill before Queen Victoria, the late King Edward and King George.

Not the Place for It.

He was writing the libretto for a comic opera. Suddenly he smiled, and he had stumbled on a brand new joke.

It was a student of jokes, a collector, a reviser, an adapter, a faddist. He subjected the joke to every known test. Finally he gave it the third degree.

There was no longer any doubt of its originality.

He read his manuscript over carefully and, sighing heavily, stared at the joke.

He realized there was no place for it in the libretto.

GROW BULBS IN WATER BOWL.

Chinese Sacred Lily, Hyacinth or Narcissus May Be Had, and Are Inexpensive.

Have you ever tried growing flowers in a bowl of water? If not you should try a few this winter. Procure some of the Chinese Sacred Lily, Hyacinth or Narcissus and place them in a bowl or deep dish and add water to hold the bulbs in position.

Then pour in clear water until the bulbs are half under water and place in a south window if convenient, or where they will have the benefit of the sunlight. Add water as needed and protect from cold the same as other winter blooming flowers.

All of the above named bulbs and a number of others may be had at any time during the winter and are nearly all of them inexpensive.

Several Hyacinths or Narcissus may be placed in one bowl; from six to ten will give a good result. Only one or two of the Chinese Lily bulbs should be planted in a bowl.

The Chinese Lily is the queen of plants for growing in water. The blossoms are pure white with yellow cup shaped centers measuring one and a half inches in diameter. The last for several weeks and are exceedingly fragrant.

The bulbs shown in the illustration carry the germs for blossoms for six weeks. They are the bulbs for winter indoors blooming. From left to right the bulbs are Jacquill, Chinese Lily, Tulip.

MOISTURE IN FLOWER POTS

Ingenious Arrangement for Supplying Water to Plants Without Trouble of Leakage.

A flower-loving genius has invented a box for supplying moisture to plants in window-boxes, stationary stands or other receptacles by which water may be supplied once a week or even at longer intervals.

The illustration shows that the water is poured into the bottom of the box or pot through a tube in the corner which extends down to the reservoir. This reservoir is from one to two inches deep and on top of it is placed a false bottom which supports the soil. Inserted in the holes to the false bottom are sponges which touch the extreme bottom of the box and extend upward into the soil in which the flowers are planted. The water is drawn upward through these sponges in sufficient quantities to maintain a uniform moisture in the soil and at the same time sufficient air is supplied with the water to insure giving the plants a thrifty and healthy growth.

Self-Watering Hanging Basket.

This is a perfect application of the principle of sub-irrigation and does away with a great deal of trouble in regard to frequent watering and leaking which the old style pots and wooden boxes entailed.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

Plants with large leaves should be washed.

Learn to prune, spray and cultivate your trees skillfully.

Fruit growing is a great business when followed properly.

The large chrysanthemum blossom is becoming generally popular.

The cow peas add humus to the soil, which enhances its water holding capacity.

Aside from enriching the soil in nitrogen the cow pea improves its general condition, rendering it more porous.

No flower collects insects more rapidly than ivy, for which reason ivy should be kept out of the collection of rare plants.

During the past 15 years the Catalpa Speciosa has come rapidly to the front on account of its immense value along commercial lines.

It will pay any one interested in fruit growing to study the catalogues of different reliable nurseries and post up on different varieties.

If, after taking the flowers into the house, you discover the troublesome meal bugs, aphids, green flies and itty red spiders, begin at once to kill them.

The currant worm can be effectually destroyed by gathering the leaves containing the young larvae, which may usually be found on the under side of the leaves.

WAS A SOLDIER OF PEACE.

With All Men of His Mind, Wars Would Soon Cease.

Alfred H. Love, the president of the Universal Peace union, told the other day in Philadelphia's press story.

"At the Christmas season," he said, "men talk sincerely about loving one another, about the universal brotherhood of man, and in the same breath they assert that it is right to burn and maim and kill in war."

"They are not so logical as a young colored recruit who served in the Philippines."

"This young man, at the end of his initial engagement, was hailed before his captain."

"So you ran at the first fire, did you?" said the captain, scornfully.

"Yes, sah; an' I'd a' run sooner, sah, if I'd knowed it wuz comin'."

"Have you no regard for your reputation, Calhoun?"

"Mah reputation hain't nuffin' to me, sah, 'longside o' mah life."

"The captain smiled and twirled his mustache. Here was an intelligent young man. He'd talk him over to the right point of view."

"Even if you should lose your life, Calhoun," he said, "you'd have the satisfaction of knowing that you had died for your country."

"'Wot satisfaction could dat be to me, sah, when de power o' feelin' it wuz gone?"

"Then patriotism means nothing to you?"

"Nuffin', sah. I wouldn't put mah life in de scales agin any government dat ever existed, for ne government could replace de loss of me."

"Calhoun, if all soldiers were like you, the world's governments would all go to pieces."

"On de contrary, sah, dey'd last forever; for if all soldiers wuz like me, den dere couldn't neber be ne fightin'?"

FATAL REALISM.

Playing in the cellar of his home at Philadelphia, a few days ago, Charles Smith, an 11-year-old boy, slipped a noose about his neck, after having first attached an end to the ceiling. He then jumped from the top of a table on which he was standing. When his mother was brought to the cellar a few minutes later attracted by the calls of her younger son, the child was dead. The boy got his younger brother, Raymond, to go to the cellar with him. Charles got a rope from the kitchen, and, hauling a table to the middle of the cellar, reached up and fastened one end to a rafter. Then making a noose he placed it over his head and threw himself from the table. His brother watched his dying struggles in glee, thinking that Charles was only making the scene realistic. Later when his brother's movements were stilled and he would not answer the child became frightened and called his mother.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY.

While cleaning out an outhouse at Netherhampton, Wilton, England, recently, a laborer came across seven old spoons all stuck into the earth. When cleaned these proved to be of silver and gilt in excellent condition, and scarcely tarnished. The spoons are dated 1529, and have been valued at £50 each. This is the second find of antiquarian interest on the earl of Pembroke's estate this year, the scene of the latest discovery being about two miles distant from the previous one, which consisted of two urns containing Roman coins.

IN THAT MUCH.

"You don't appear to be in very good humor to-day," said the visitor to the sanctum.

WRITING PLAY IN CROWD

Clyde Fitch, the Dramatist, Was Able to Write Under Almost Any Circumstances.

It is not often one sees the actual writing of a play. Naturally few authors care for onlookers while they work. Clyde Fitch was a conspicuous exception. He was able to write under almost any circumstances. Indeed, had he not been, he hardly could have produced as abundantly as he did. Habitually he rose early and was at his desk while the morning was yet young. But he made no hard and fast rule as to working hours. An instance of his freedom from that notionism as typical of creative writers occurred while he was in the midst of "The Girl With the Green Eyes." A party of intimates were spending the week-end with him at his country house. During the lazy Sunday afternoon, while his guests were occupying themselves variously, he took paper and pencil to a corner of the long room in which they were all gathered. Disregarding their games and chatter, he worked out his scene—a scene in the second act of that delightful comedy, which ranks with the best work he has ever done.—Metropolitan Magazine.

WISE MILKMAN

Mr. Haggie—I won't pay for that last quart of milk. My wife thought it was a chalk mixture and gave it to the children for medicine.

Milkman—Then it will cost you 65 cents. I used to be a druggist, and prescription work costs money.

LETTER POSTAGE.

"Strange ideas some people have about postage," said the clerk who opens the mail. "Yes. See this letter here with three one-cent stamps on it and stamped one cent due? That's a case in point. The writer of that letter thought that perhaps it weighed a little over an ounce, a little more than would go for two cents, and so he put on a little more postage—one cent more—which he thought would cover it, when the fact is that it required an additional two-cent stamp."

"Of course you know that letter postage is not fractional, but that it goes in multiples of two. If a letter weighs ever so little over an ounce it requires an additional two-cent stamp; but not everybody seems to know this, and so we sometimes get letters like this one with a little more postage for a little more weight."

LAST SURVIVOR OF '76.

The last survivor of the revolutionary war was John Gray, who died in Noble county, Ohio, aged one hundred and four years, on March 26, 1868. He came to the Buckeye State early in its existence.

For some years before he died he drew an annual pension of $500 from the government, Gen. John A. Bingham having gotten a special act through congress for this. Gray's father was killed at the battle of Stillwater and he took his place in the army, being only sixteen years old then. He served through the remainder of the war. His military record is on file at the office of the state commissioner of soldiers' claims.

NO USE FOR WALKING STICK

Average American. In Hustle of Life, Has No Time for Unnecessary Cargo.

Now that we are reminded of it, we realize that the great American people are seldom seen to possess a walking stick. "It's a small thing," writes an essayist in a morning paper, "the absence of the walking stick, but it belongs to the American motto, never, in the hustle of life, carry unnecessary cargo."

The idea is, of course, fantastic with the fantasy of transatlantic common sense. The hustle of life surely extends to travel in the case of a nation which would consider itself degraded if it spent longer than a week in a complete journey through Europe; and when Americans travel they are the last to deny themselves the luxury of an extra bit of luggage because it happens to be unnecessary. It is common knowledge that they go on loading the liner with trunks until the captain's official says "Stop." If only to collect so many more steamship and hotel labels to add to their already bloated store of these trophies.

No. The walking stick is a matter purely of personal choice. Most Americans chance to feel no need for a walking stick whereas we do. That is how the thing stands. When it comes to a walking stick the world must be considered individually. The physical weakling is quite likely to have a taste for a gigantic club; the enormously powerful man who snaps his sandow developer before breakfast as though it were a piece of cotton may select for a walking stick the thinnest shred of malacca that money can buy.—London Globe.

INTRODUCTION ANNOYED HER

Haughty Little Miss Shows Her Resentment When Presented to a Terrier.

There is a little East End girl, still under six, who reaches the limit in the matter of sensitiveness. Likewise, she has her points in respect to dead-gameness. She was taken out to Lakewood about a week ago to spend a few days with her aunt. The little Miss played around in front of her aunt's place for awhile. Then her aunt let a playful young terrier into the yard, saying to the child:

"This is your little four-footed cousin."

Five minutes later the aunt returned to the front yard to call the kid into the house, but she wasn't anywhere to be seen. The fox terrier was playing alone. There was a scrambling hunt for the child, and all kinds of alarm, but the little girl didn't turn up. The aunt hustled to town. The little girl was home with her mother.

She had walked right to the car for town as soon as the fox terrier pup was presented to her.

"Why didn't you stay at nanty's?" her mother asked her in surprise.

"She introduced me to a dog!" replied the haughty little person.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Literature for Criminals.

Scientific burglary is perhaps practical to a greater extent in America than in England. They have even a literature on the subject which the police find difficult to suppress. And some time ago a huge volume was openly published which elucidated all the latest methods of crime, from robbing a till to blowing up a bank safe.

Most of the copies were seized, and those that remain are nearly as valuable as first folio Shakespeares. On this side of the Atlantic, however, scientific instruction in the criminal art has hitherto been confined to magazine articles, although the present writer knows at least three books that the up-to-date criminals would find exceedingly useful.

One by a celebrated chemist incidentally divulges secrets that would make the fortune of a forger. Another by a well-known lawyer describes an infallible means of proving an alibi; while the third shows the man who is "wanted" how to leave the country by ways never watched by the police.—London Chronicle.

DANCING SCHOOL

"It doesn't seem to me that that's a very good report card," Bobby's father said judicially one evening after dinner. "Your history work is very poor and your deportment mark is disgraceful."

"Nobody's good in history," Bobby explained. "Even Mamie Kelly's mark is something fierce. It's that now teacher. She don't know yet who's the good ones that she has to mark high, and besides she's sore because she caught me whispering. However, everybody whispers in her room except Nellie Foster, and she doesn't 'cause she says she's always sorry afterward."

"I was mad that day 'cause Susie Herrick came up to our room. That's enough to make any feller mad. How'd that girl get up to our room for keeps when everybody knows she was always a whole year behind? They'd oughter made her a mid-year instead of sticking her into our room. Billy's awful sore at it."

"You've missed the point, Bobby. It's a question of marks, not of likes and dislikes."

"Well, nobody likes her. All anybody's got to do it to remember back how stingy she always was with candy and things. Why, she never'd give a feller nny, unless it was Jimmy. That's 'cause Jimmy's always at her house after school. He walks home from school with her every day and that makes me tired. We can't even get him to play indoor ball or go to a nickel show on account of him having dates. You see, he goes to dancing school where she goes. It makes me tired."

"This is the third time I've had to speak about your history mark."

"I guess it'll be some better now," Bobby assured his father. "We've got to the war now and it's real interesting. Was your father in the revolution or in the civil war?"

"The civil war."

"That's what I told Jimmy and he said I was away off. He said there ain't anybody living that was in the civil war. It's terrible in history."

"He must be a comfort to you."

"Who, Jimmy? I should say not. Sam's a lot better'n Jimmy. Me and Billy and Sam are getting up a swell crowd to go on a picnic next summer. We've ast three already. We got to have it early so's to get ahead of people's going away. You can't get Sam to talk about it, he's so crazy over dancing school! Did you ever go to dancing school?"

"Long ago. Do you think Bobby, that you would be helped any if you recited your history lesson to me before you went to school in the morning?"

Bobby's face fell. "Maybe," he said, dubiously. "If I have to."

"Of course, it would be very interesting to me," his father said, with deep irony. "But if you don't think you'd enjoy it we need not go to work at it yet."

"You'll have to study it a good deal harder for me than for your teacher," his father warned him. "And you've got to remember it from day to day."

"I don't know about that," Bobby said. "I never do remember. Mamie Kelly's the only one that ever does."

"Don't you hate to be beaten by a girl?"

"She doesn't beat me in anything else. She's fierce in spelling and she ain't no good in arithmetic now that she goes to dancing school. It ain't the dancing that hurts; it's the standing around and talking with the fellows and not studying at home."

"I don't see that it makes an difference to you what Mamie Kelly does."

"It makes a lot of difference," Bobby assured him. "When she doesn't know her lesson teacher gets sore at all of us and that's the way I get low marks. Anyhow, it's one way. She says, 'Everything goes wrong this morning,' when she begins with Mamie Kelly and doesn't get anything but a lemon. Mamie Kelly doesn't mind what marks she gets. She's got a clench."

"That depends on how you look at it."

"Well, her mother has her take music lessons and she can play some classy things. And then, of course, she goes to dancing school—everybody does. But she's almost as stingy as Susie Herrick."

"Maybe she isn't stingy when you know her better."

"Better!" Bobby cried. "Better! I don't want to know her better. That's the only reason I don't want to go to dancing school."

"Are there any reasons why you do?"

"I should say so. Bushels."

"What, for instance?"

"Well—er—I do."

"Any others?"

"Y-yes, but—well, everybody goes and it's a lot of fun."

"So I've heard. How about that history?"

"Well, I'll recite to you every day. Honest, I'll have a better mark next time."

"Very well. When do you want to begin dancing school?"

"It doesn't make any difference," Bobby said with a tremble of eagerness in his voice. "But if you don't care, of course, the sooner the quicker to get your money's worth. I don't see the use of waiting till after Christmas, do you? Not that it makes any difference to me, of course, but could I begin next week?"

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

GOV. WILLSON OFFERS $500

For Conviction of Each Night
Rider in Hopkinsville Raid.

Frankfort, Ky., March 6.—A reward of $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of each of the Night Riders who raided Hopkinsville was renewed by Gov. Willson Saturday. The offer for the reward was for a limited period and having expired the governor renews the offer to pay $500 for each man convicted.

GETTING READY

To Improve the Kitty League
Warriors This Year.

Out of the stillness of the winter comes the official announcement that Paducah will be represented in the Kitty league this season, and with a pennant winner if possible. From now until the season opens, which will be May 25, there is a promise that preparations will be under way for the best season in the history of the Kitty.

Contracts have been nailed to Woodring, Cox, Floyd, Payne and Anderson, the latter manager of the Indians at the close of the last season. These players will be retained out of the team last year, while contracts have been nailed to a number of recruits, who will be given the opportunity to wear a Paducah uniform provided they can play ball.

A manager has not been appointed, but after the meeting of the stockholders some interesting information will be furnished the fans.—Paducah Sun.

FAIRVIEW LETTER

Tea Rose, Correspondent

Mr. Cooper R. Miller, who has been sick for the past two months of pneumonia, died last Tuesday morning at his home two miles East of this place. After a brief funeral service at the residence, by his pastor Rev. W. R. Wagoner, of the M. E. church, the remains were taken to Hopkinsville, where they were interred in Riverside Cemetery. Mr. Miller was twenty eight years, ten months and one day old, and was born in Warren county. He is survived by a wife and mother. A brother, Alorzo Miller, died in December at Hopkinsville, of pneumonia. Mr. Miller was well liked by every one, who will learn with sorrow of his demise, and extend to the bereaved ones their heart felt condolence in their irreparable loss.

Mr. Walter Burrus had the misfortune to have his house destroyed by fire last Monday morning, the fire originating from a middle chimney in the house. About all the contents were saved, and he had nine hundred dollars insurance. This is the second house Mr. Burrus has had burned in the past ten years. Mr. Burrus and family will move here to live at once.

Miss Corinne Parrent, of Hopkinsville, will give one of her entertainments at the new Graded School building here on Saturday evening, March 11th. Miss Parrent comes well recommended as an impersonator and a fine elocutionist. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents, the proceeds will go to the school.

Mr. R. E. Gillium left last Saturday for Newstead, where he goes into business. Mr. Gillium recently sold out his real estate at Britmart to Mr. Luther Norman, of Allegree, who has opened up a store there. We wish Mr. Gillium well there.

A three-year old child of Mr. Will Rose, who lives near Tabernacle, died last Sunday morning of dyptheria, having been sick only a few days. Mr. Rose has two other children sick with the same disease.

Mrs. Walker Eddins, who has been confined to her room and bed for the past several months, we are glad to say, is very much improved, and able to be up most of the time.

Fielding E. Wade, of Elkton, spent a few days this week with relatives, and visited his uncle, Mr. W. H. Shanklin, who was stricken with blindness last week.

Messrs. Merrell Russell and Walton Forgy, of Elkton, were here last week. Mr. Forgy is a candidate for the legislature from Todd county.

Mrs. W. W. Griffin, who has been with her husband at Allensville for the past two weeks, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Brown.

There is a great deal of sickness in the community, most of it being of a minor nature, measles predominating.

Messrs. Oliver and Boyd have opened up a grocery in the Yancey house, and will be glad to see their friends.

G. D. Shaw, of Hopkinsville, was in the city this week shaking hands with old friends and acquaintances.

The graded school here will close March 10th, we understand. The term has been a very successful one.

Miss Naomi Oliver, of near Pembroke, spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Oliver, here.

Miss Fay Petrie is in Springfield, Tenn., this week, visiting relatives and friends.

Rev. W. R. Goodman will preach at Casky Sunday at the Baptist church.

Roads in this section continue to be very bad, especially the Butler road.

TWO ATTRACTIONS

At The Union Tabernacle
This Week.

The Tabernacle Management has been very fortunate in securing The DeKoven Male Quartet for Thursday night as an extra attraction to take the place of the Robert Parker Miles lecture, booked for February 24th which was cancelled. The DeKoven Male Quartet had every night engaged early in the season but through unavoidable circumstances the parties contracting for them on March 9th could not fill their agreement and the Local Management, quick to take advantage of this opportunity, closed the contract with the Bureau by wire.

This is a company of selected vocalists, singing many of the old songs and singing them well. They have been before the public for six years and have never had a change in their personnel. This alone would prove that it was a first-class attraction but in addition this is one of the few attractions that are sold by the Bureau on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction, and it is sure to be one of the best numbers on the program. Tickets of the regular Course, marked No. 5, printed for Robert Parker Miles, will be accepted on this Entertainment.

The Beilharz, an attraction of unusual merit, will be at the Tabernacle tonight, and this extra attraction, the DeKoven Male Quartet, will be on Thursday night.

It was unfortunate to have these two good numbers coming right together but those who make the extra effort and attend them both will not have cause to regret.

JOHN T. MARKHAM

Wants it Understood He is Not A Well Digger.

John T. Markham asks the Kentuckian to correct the report in some of the papers that he is a well digger. He is a brick contractor, doing his own masonry and plastering when occasion requires, but he never dug a well.

Wilmore, near Nicholasville, burns.

MAN TAILOR FOR LADIES

AT ANDERSON'S

SATURDAY, MARCH 11th

On the above date we will have with us a practical tailor, who will take each customer's measure and draft patterns to fit.

We render this service free of cost to you, and in this way you are assured of an individuality in fit that could not be obtained in any other way.

Any one can slip a coat on you, but it takes an expert to tell where the little difficulties lie, and the gentleman who will be with us is thoroughly competent in the strictest sense of the word.

On this date we will have for your inspection at least 75 different cloths, of the very newest of this season's creations.

We will also have a line of suits, skirts, and silk petticoats for immediate delivery, that would do credit to any store, and whatever alterations are necessary will be under the direct supervision of this expert tailor.

For each of the 75 cloths as mentioned above we will have suits of different models, which will be delivered on that date.

For stout ladies especially this affords a golden opportunity, for this season's styles are rather trying and they will find some difficulty in being fitted in the ordinary way.

We assume all risk and guarantee fit and satisfaction.

J. H. ANDERSON & CO.
